NOVAK EDUCATION WORKSHOP DESCRIPTION PART 1

Being "book-smart" or good at test-taking are rarely the best markers of success. Our students must know how to collaborate, communicate, problem-solve and think critically to thrive in the workplace. When learners are self-aware and able to identify and regulate their emotions, and when they can work well independently or with peers, they can tap into parts of their brain that may otherwise be shut off to learning. In a nutshell, all learning is social and emotional. Throughout this session, we will explore how to create an environment that fosters social, emotional, behavioural, and academic growth using both UDL and SEL in your learning environment.

FOLLOW-UP SESSION DESCRIPTION PART 2

During this 90-minute session, we will offer an opportunity to discuss practical ways to help students develop better relationships with their teachers and peers in the classroom through a UDL and SEL approach. Together we will explore questions to guide our conversations, such as:

What can I do (or what am I already doing) as an educator to foster a safe and nurturing environment where students can thrive?

How can we help students build strong relationships in the classroom with teachers and other students?

Join us to gain further insight and takeaways on how you can support students' academic and social-emotional growth.
